RECENT PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

2007 – Present: The Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University

Associate Professor of the Practice in the fields of Homeland Security, Terrorism, and Cybersecurity. Teach graduate level, in resident and on-line courses with focus on extremists and terrorism and the national effort to secure the homeland. In 2014, developed (and currently teach) two courses for in residence instruction, PSAA 608, Cybersecurity for Managers and PSAA 660, Domestic Terrorism. 608 centers on the policies and strategy of securing cyber space and includes instruction on risk management and how terrorist elements use the internet and social media in their operations. 660 is an in depth survey of domestic terrorist groups and individuals and how federal, state and local law enforcement works to combat these elements. Over the last six years developed the following online courses: PSAA 655, Department of Defense in Homeland Defense and Homeland Security focuses on the strategic planning and integration functions of Title 10 military, as these pertain to the homeland defense and homeland security missions. PSSA 657, Terrorism Today is a survey of historical and current extremist and terrorist groups. PSAA 654, Border Security and PSAA 620, Guarding the Nation’s Maritime Gateways are courses that analyze the nation’s efforts to secure our land borders and coasts. PSAA 651, Domestic Intelligence studies the laws, policies and operations of the federal government and domestic law enforcement agencies in support of the terrorist threat to America. Both online courses and resident courses are supported with extensive research backed by frequent contact with government agencies and other professionals.

Director, Graduate Certificate in Homeland Security Program (since 2010). Responsible for the academic operation of the Certificate Program including administrative oversight and curriculum development. Other responsibilities include: online instruction, assisting students toward successful program completion and staffing the online classroom(s) with qualified instructors.

2019 – February 2021: Interim Director, Texas A&M Cybersecurity Center.

Responsible to oversee the Center’s mission and activities which include: “Enhance cybersecurity education and research by teaming multidisciplinary groups to seek solutions that incorporate technical, economic, behavioral, societal, and law and policy considerations. Act as the Focal Point for Cybersecurity Programs and Activities. Coordinate Academic and Professional Continuing Education Efforts. Foster Research Partnerships and Collaborations.

2004 – 2007: Visiting Assistant Professor, Department of Educational Administration and Human Resource Development, College of Education and Human Development, Texas A&M University

Visiting assistant professor for graduate classes in the areas of human resources development, organization development, group dynamics, and change theory.

2004 – 2007: Adjunct Professor, College of Business and Technology, Webster University, (San Antonio Branch)

Taught graduate level classes in human resource development, organization development, management and group dynamics.

2000 – 2006: Director, JROTC Program, Robert E. Lee High School, North East Independent School District, San Antonio, Texas

As department head responsible for administration of the program and integration of the JROTC curriculum into the Lee learning community. Responsible to insure the program supported the overall educational goals and objectives of the NEISD. Organized all instruction to be learner-centered and to enhance the critical thinking and problem solving skills of students. Integrated elements of the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills for social studies into the JROTC curriculum. Mentored and counseled teenagers toward achievement of future goals.

1997 – 2000: Training Consultant with U.S. State Department “Train and Equip” Program in Federation of Bosnia-Herzegovina

Duties were principally centered on contact and interaction with local nationals in order to guide them from a centrally controlled style organization to a more decentralized style that focused on team work and individual initiative. As Training Team Chief (two years) acted as principal advisor to the client CEO (corps commander) for administration, operations, logistics, and training within his organization. Assessed the effectiveness of the corporate policies, programs, and personnel; then proposed career development training to address identified weaknesses. Taught and mentored the senior headquarters staff on NATO standards in administrative staff procedures and operational tactics and techniques. Also developed / implemented a training program for multi-unit level managers (brigade level) within the corps. Supervised team of eight instructors and interpreters in the program. As national level adviser (one year) to Federation Ministry of Defense for the development of the country’s General Defense Plan. After developing the Plan, assisted in the multi-level coordination necessary to implement it throughout the Federation military and civil authorities. Duties included assisting the Ministry staff in development of counterterrorism contingency plans. Authored official policy correspondence and provided technical advice to senior leaders.

1977 – 1997: U.S. Army Officer

Served in various command and staff assignments in the United States and overseas. SYNERGISIC ACTIVITIES

2010- Present, Director, Graduate Certificate in Homeland Security Program, George Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University. Oversee a graduate level on-line education program with 15 courses, 13 faculty and 80 students. Periodically coordinate this curriculum with DHS, DOD, US Northern Command, US Army North and Naval Postgraduate School sources to ensure relevance and currency.

2012-Present, Education Officer for the U.S. Army Ranger Memorial Foundation, Inc. My responsibility is to prepare and present a presentation titled, U.S. Army Ranger History and Contributions that depicts the contributions of Army Ranger units to the history of our country. I speak in at least six states each year, to public and private organizations. These presentations inform the public on contributions to the nation by US Army Rangers and qualify our organization for Combined Federal Campaign funding.

2005-2007, Course Coordinator and Instructor, Department of Defense, Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA) Course. Acted as course coordinator and subject matter expert in this five-day U.S. Northern Command training course. Duties included coordination with numerous federal departments and agencies to insure the curriculum reflected current law, policy and procedures. Responsible for exercise development that exposed students to interagency doctrine, staff coordination and planning necessary to support DSCA contingencies. Exercises included terrorist events that required students to plan and support counterterrorist operations. Also responsible for improving the course's learning environment, particularly to integrate learner-centered instructional techniques in all classes.

2005-2007, Seminar Coordinator, Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA) State and Regional Seminar.

Part of U.S. Northern Command's educational effort to inform states on the capabilities the Department of Defense can bring into a disaster response. Response to weapons of mass destruction terrorist attack was the driving scenario in these seminars. Developed and coordinated each one-day seminar that included participation from U.S. Northern Command, U.S. Army North, U.S. Air Force North, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and numerous state-level departments. During 2005 and 2006 conducted seminars in New Mexico, Nebraska and Texas.

2007-Present, Adjunct Professor, Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University.

Developed a graduate level course that examines the multifaceted role played by the Department of Defense in the missions of homeland defense and homeland security. This course guides students to a broad understanding of the traditional role of military forces in the domestic arena in the US, Mexico and Canada. Additionally, the emerging roles and responsibilities of DOD ushered in with the 9-11 terrorist attacks is explored.

2003-2005, Adjunct Professor, National Graduate School/University.

For this institution developed two graduate level courses. HSM542: The Unconventional (Terrorist) Threat to Homeland Security explores both transnational and domestic terrorist threat to the nation. Included in the course is an examination of individuals, groups, and major movements that use terrorist tactics to advance their causes. The second course developed, HSM 587: Protection of the Nation's Critical Infrastructure, focuses on the nation's critical infrastructure and key resources, how they are organized and measures taken to protect them from threats. During the course special emphasis is given to critical infrastructure vulnerability from the terrorist threat.
