Course Description

This course examines changes within Russia and its role in international politics since 1991, emphasizing the period of Vladimir Putin's presidency, explores Putin’s approach to political, economic and social challenges facing Russia, as well as the war in Chechnya and terrorism within Russia, also examines Russia's critical relationship with the United States.

It will provide students with a strong analytical and empirical understanding of Russian foreign policy. The course emphasizes the material and intellectual drivers of Russian foreign policy, with an emphasis on the implications for the United States. It begins with a historical overview designed to give students an appreciation of the sources of continuity and change in Russian foreign policy behavior, including debates over national identity, the role of geographic factors, and perceptions of vulnerability. The bulk of the course will focus on the period since the Soviet collapse in 1991, attempting to answer the question of why attempts to anchor Russia in “the West” ultimately failed, and how the current era of great power competition emerged. Particular emphasis will be placed on Russian approaches to global order, U.S.-Russian relations, the post-Soviet region, and the emerging Sino-Russian partnership, and the war in Ukraine.

Course Prerequisites

Course Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course, students will be able to accomplish the following:

- Describe Russia’s basic diplomatic, political, and economic history over the past 1000 years;
• Analyze sources of change and continuity in Russian foreign policy behavior
• Analyze the differences between Russian perceptions of its status as a great power and its ability to secure its interests in Eurasia;
• Evaluate the critical domestic drivers of Russian foreign policy, including political economy, ideology, institutional design, bureaucratic politics, and the role of leaders;
• Assess the role of the United States, China, and other international actors in shaping Russian conception of national interests and foreign policy behavior;
• Evaluate the reasons for the failure of attempts to anchor Russia in the West in the early post-Soviet era;
• Understand Russian perceptions of Eurasia and the role of imperial collapse in shaping Russian approaches to its neighbors;
• Analyze the strengths and weaknesses of Russia’s foreign policy toolkit;
• Understand the long and short-term causes of Russia’s wart in Ukraine and the implications of the war for Russia’s future development;
• Evaluate Russia’s current grand strategy and the success and failures of its discrete foreign policies;
• Consider the prospects and scenarios of Russia’s internal and external development.

Textbook and/or Resource Materials

Assigned readings will be posted online.

Students should also familiarize themselves with the major online news outlets covering Russia and its neighbors. These include daily newspapers like the NY Times and Washington Post; specialized foreign policy publications like Foreign Affairs, Foreign Policy, War on the Rocks, World Politics Review, and CNN; think-tanks (especially Carnegie, CSIS, Brookings, Atlantic Council, and the Institute for the Study of War) as well as Russia-focused publications such as: Meduza, The Moscow Times, Riddle Russia, TV Rain (on YouTube), RFE/RL, and Novaya Gazeta Europe.

Grading Policy

Grades are based on: in-class participation (10%), response papers (30%), briefing memo (30%), and final paper (30%).

• Pre-class assignments are considered late after 12:00pm on the day of the class meeting but will be accepted for half credit. Pre-class assignments will not be accepted after the beginning of class.
• Written products will be penalized one letter grade per day following deadlines.

In-class participation (10%)

During our class meetings, the bulk of the time together will be in discussion. Students are expected to come to class regularly, to have completed the reading assignments for each class, and to take part in discussions.

Response papers (30%)
Over the course of the semester, each student will prepare two response papers (15% each) of no less than 1000 words and no more than 1500 words on that week’s readings and topic. The first response paper will be due no later than Week 7 and the second response paper will be due no later than Week 13.

The response papers will be based on the assigned readings. The objective is for you to tease out common themes and develop questions to be used for the in-class discussion.

This is an opportunity for students to delve into topics of personal interest useful for the policy memo, final paper, other courses, and general professional development. Each response paper will be due 24 hours ahead of the class meeting.

Briefing memo (30%)
By the end of the fourth week of the course, each student will select an issue of interest in the United States-Russia relationship that would be the subject of a briefing to high-level policy makers. By Week 8, students will need to produce a briefing memo (3 pages maximum) on this topic.

In the briefing memo, you will need to: 1) explain the problem; 2) outline current U.S. policy on this problem; 3) identify possible new approaches (policy makers want options, so give them a choice); and 4) your recommended course of action, including the likely consequences (positive and negative).

Briefing memos should be in memo format, with headings and bullet points. Concision and clarity are key.

Final paper (30%)
A final paper on a topic of your choice (chosen in consultation with the instructor) will be due during the final exam period. The final paper should be based on your original research (not just the assigned course readings) and be in the area of 12-15 double-spaced pages, with appropriate citations.

University Policies

Attendance Policy

The university views class attendance and participation as an individual student responsibility. Students are expected to attend class and to complete all assignments.

Please refer to Student Rule 7 in its entirety for information about excused absences, including definitions, and related documentation and timelines.

Makeup Work Policy

Students will be excused from attending class on the day of a graded activity or when attendance contributes to a student’s grade, for the reasons stated in Student Rule 7, or other reason deemed appropriate by the instructor.

Please refer to Student Rule 7 in its entirety for information about makeup work, including definitions, and related documentation and timelines.

Absences related to Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 may necessitate a period of more than 30 days for make-up work, and the timeframe for make-up work should be agreed upon by the student and instructor” (Student Rule 7, Section 7.4.1).

“The instructor is under no obligation to provide an opportunity for the student to make up work missed because of an unexcused absence” (Student Rule 7, Section 7.4.2).

Students who request an excused absence are expected to uphold the Aggie Honor Code and Student Conduct Code. (See Student Rule 24.)

Academic Integrity Statement and Policy

“An Aggie does not lie, cheat or steal, or tolerate those who do.”

“Texas A&M University students are responsible for authenticating all work submitted to an instructor. If asked, students must be able to produce proof that the item submitted is indeed the work of that student. Students must keep appropriate records at all times. The inability to authenticate one’s work, should the instructor request it, may be sufficient grounds to initiate an academic misconduct case” (Section 20.1.2.3, Student Rule 20).

Title IX and Statement on Limits to Confidentiality
Texas A&M University is committed to fostering a learning environment that is safe and productive for all. University policies and federal and state laws prohibit gender-based discrimination and sexual harassment, including sexual assault, sexual exploitation, domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking.
With the exception of some medical and mental health providers, all university employees (including full and part-time faculty, staff, paid graduate assistants, student workers, etc.) are Mandatory Reporters and must report to the Title IX Office if the employee experiences, observes, or becomes aware of an incident that meets the following conditions (see University Rule 08.01.01.M1):

- The incident is reasonably believed to be discrimination or harassment.
- The incident is alleged to have been committed by or against a person who, at the time of the incident, was (1) a student enrolled at the University or (2) an employee of the University.

Mandatory Reporters must file a report regardless of how the information comes to their attention – including but not limited to face-to-face conversations, a written class assignment or paper, class discussion, email, text, or social media post. Although Mandatory Reporters must file a report, in most instances, a person who is subjected to the alleged conduct will be able to control how the report is handled, including whether or not to pursue a formal investigation. The University’s goal is to make sure you are aware of the range of options available to you and to ensure access to the resources you need.
